8.1 Test Strategy

8.1.1 Approach

I will thoroughly test my system using alpha, beta, and acceptance testing.

During alpha testing I will test all features of my system myself. I will do this by entering data and performing actions in the system and checking the output data to check that it is correct. This will be white box testing as I know how all of the code works. This knowledge will allow me to precisely stress test different areas of the system that I know are likely to fail.

There are several main areas of the system that need testing. These are, the creation of questions and forms, the attempting of questions and forms, progress tracking, the user management features, and importing and exporting forms and questions.

Functional testing

A large amount of this testing was completed during development because after each feature was implemented it was tested to ensure that it worked correctly. However, all features weren't fully tested at all stages of development e.g. after altering a related feature each feature wasn't fully tested to ensure that it still worked. This means that some features, although unlikely, may have stopped working / might not work as well. Therefore, I will test features in depth during alpha testing to ensure that they all work as intended.

When performing tests where the system performs a calculation I will perform the calculation by hand and compare the result to check whether the result is correct. This will ensure that I find the majority of logical errors. An area that would benefit from this is the statistics tracking because there is a large amount of data gathered.

To test that the functions are executed in the required time (have the correct performance) I will time the execution of the most time consuming operations e.g. starting the system to ensure that it is within the acceptable boundaries from the design.

Data/File Handling

It's required that the import and export functions of the system work perfectly. This is because this is the only way that forms and questions can be distributed to each user of the club. An error in this part of the system could be catastrophic if it resulted in corrupting the questions or forms database. I will test this area of the system using white box testing to ensure that all parts of the import/export logic are fully tested. I will do this by importing and exporting a large variety of different forms including unusual forms (e.g. forms with very large numbers of questions). I will also import and export a large variety of questions.

Validation testing

This is an important area of my system that needs to be fully tested this is because the main purpose of the system is to teach the users how to correctly fill in forms.

Each type of component that can be added to a question will be fully tested with typical, extreme, and erroneous data. This will be done using unit tests. Each type of validated component is its own object so I will be able to fully test the object. I will then do a brief integration test to ensure that they also work in the system as part of a form.

There are no other areas of the user section of the system that allows the user to input text data all other data entry is prevalidated entry (e.g. radio buttons). The admin area of the system has a few more entry fields that need to be tested. All fields used during the creation of a question or form will be tested. Also all the features of the user management aspect of the system should be checked for correct validation.

Navigation testing

I will test that the navigation functions correctly in my system. To do this I will test that all of the navigation buttons on the main menu take the user to the correct screen and that pressing the tabs at the top of the screen take the user to the correct screens. I will ensure that buttons which open other windows and menus e.g. the take register button work as required.

Beta testing

I will perform some beta testing. This will be more limited than the alpha testing that I will be performing. I will release the system to a small audience of testers (that is not the end user) so that they can give me feedback and test it from the perspective of what an end user would experience. This will be black box testing as the users won't know the inner workings of the system. This is useful because it means that they will be similar to a regular user using the system and will also use the system in ways that I have not thought of. Using both white and black box testing will ensure that I have a well-rounded approach to testing.

There will be around 4 testers and each will be given a different area of the system to test e.g. Questions, Forms, Users, Statistics. This will ensure that there is detailed testing of each area as the scope of the system is too large for just 1 tester to cover it all.

I will write some limited instructions for each tester to follow this will mean that they will have a little knowledge of the system and so won't be completely stuck but will still experience the system as if they are a new user. I will provide a questionnaire that they can fill in during/after testing to ensure that I get specific and relevant feedback about the area of the system that they are testing. I will include a score that they have to give each section of the system out of ten and a place for them to write any feedback about each area. I will also ask them to specify if any processes took too long of a time to complete.

Acceptance testing

I will perform a limited amount of acceptance testing. I will use acceptance testing to ensure that the software works in the computer club. This is important because there is a wide variety of hardware in use at the computer club. Each user has a different laptop (some with different versions of windows on them) and most laptops have different screen resolutions. I designed my system with this in mind by only using cross platform libraries and ensuring that the GUI was fully scalable and resizable. Despite this, it's still very important to check that the software works on each and every laptop. I will attend a computer club session and will observe the users using the system.

8.12 Use of Test Data

I will test each feature with typical, extreme, and erroneous data (where appropriate).

I have used mockaroo to generate 40 example user accounts in the system. These will all be generated as typical data.

User accounts

	Admin	Regular user
Type	Typical	Typical
Username	bob123	fmaccourt1
Password	orangepineapple	pOolwgp6

The rest of the information for these accounts will be generated using mockaroo.

Questions

Title	Type	Difficulty
Name	Name	2
Gender	Radio-buttons	1
Address	Address	5
Email	Email	6
Date of Birth	Calendar	8

Days available	Checkboxes	5
Password	Password	4
Title	Drop-down	2
CV upload	File upload	8
Phone number	Phone	4

Forms

There are a few other fields that are stored about forms however these are not entered by the user. These fields are main skills tested (automatically populated with the types of the questions in the form), percentage complete and time completed (different per user)

Title	Description	Difficulty	Questions
Basic information	This form asks for basic information about the user.	5	Name, Gender, Email, Date of Birth
Job Application	This is a mock-up job application.	8	Title, Name, Gender, Email, Address, Days available, CV upload
Passport Application	This is a mock-up passport application.	6	Title, Name, Gender, Email, Photo ID Upload, Address
Contact information	This form asks the user for basic information on how to and when they can be contacted.	4	Name, Address, Email, Days available
Getting started	This is a very basic form which serves to be a very easy introduction into filling in forms.	2	Name, Gender

8.2 Alpha Testing

8.21 Functional Test List

Test ID	Objective Description	Type of Test	Data Used	Description & Expected Outcome
F1a	Ability to create questions	Typical	Title: A typical question Type: Email Difficulty: 5	This should create a question with the specified title, type and difficulty.
F1b	Ability to create questions	Erroneous	Title: <blank> Type: Email Difficulty: 5	This tests that the system disallows creating a question without all of the required information. The system should produce an error message that tells the user to add a title to the question.
F1c	Ability to create questions	Erroneous	Title: A typical question Type: <blank> Difficulty: 5	This tests that the system disallows creating a question without all of the required information. The system should produce an error message that tells the user to add a type.
F1d	Ability to create questions	Erroneous	Title: A typical question Type: Email Difficulty: <blank>	This tests that the system disallows creating a question without all of the required information. The system should produce an error message that tells the user to add a difficulty.
F2a	Ability to add labels	Typical	Text: label text	This tests that the system allows adding a label with text. A label with the text "label text" should appear in the question preview
F2b	Ability to add labels	Erroneous	Text: <blank>	This tests that the system disallows adding a label without text. No label should be added to the question preview.
F2c	Ability to add labels	Boundary	Text: <space>	This tests that the system disallows adding a label without meaningful text. No label should be added to the question preview.
F3a	Ability to add text fields	Typical	Validation type: none	This tests that adding a text field with no validation works correctly.

				A text field should appear in the question preview.
F3b	Ability to add text fields	Typical	<none> The close button is pressed	This tests that what then close button is pressed, on the select validation type dialog, the adding of a text field is cancelled. No text field should be added to the question preview.
F4a	Ability to specify the type of data that should be entered into the text field.	Typical	Validation type: phone	This tests that when a validation type is selected the correct type of text field is added to the question. A text field with phone number validation should be added to the question
F4b	Ability to specify the type of data that should be entered into the text field.	Typical	Validation type: email	This tests that when a validation type is selected the correct type of text field is added to the question. A text field with email validation should be added to the question
F5a	Ability to add radio buttons Ability to add drop-downs Ability to add checkboxes	Typical	Options: 1,2,3,4,5	This tests the option entry dialog which is used to specify the options that can entered to be used with radio buttons, checkboxes, or a combobox. The dialog should close when ok is pressed. This shows that there was no error with the user's input.
F5b	Ability to add radio buttons Ability to add drop-downs Ability to add checkboxes	Erroneous	Options: <none>	This tests the option entry dialog which is used to specify the options that can entered to be used with radio buttons, checkboxes, or a combobox. The dialog should close when ok is pressed. However no entry component should be added to the question.
F6a	Ability to add radio buttons	Typical	Options: 1,2,3,4,5	This tests that a set of radio buttons can be added to a question. A set of 5 radio buttons with options 1 to 5 should be added to the question.
F7a	Ability to add drop-downs	Typical	Options: 1,2,3,4,5	This tests that a set combobox can be added to a question. A combobox with options 1 to 5 should be added to the question.

F8a	Ability to add checkboxes	Typical	Options: 1,2,3,4,5	This tests that a set of checkboxes can be added to a question. A set of 5 checkboxes with options 1 to 5 should be added to the question.
F9a	Ability to add password fields	Typical		This tests that password fields can be added to the question. 2 blank password fields should be added to the question.
F10a	Ability to add calendar entry	Typical		This tests that calendar entry can be added to the question. A calendar entry should be added to the question.
F11a	Ability to add a document upload field	Typical	Types of files allowed: all	This tests that adding a filechooser with no validation works correctly. A filechooser should appear in the question preview.
F11b	Ability to add a document upload field	Erroneous	<close button pressed>	This tests that what then close button is pressed, on the select file type dialog, the adding of a filechooser is cancelled. No filechooser should be added to the question preview.
F11c	Ability to add a document upload field	Typical	Types of files allowed: image	This tests that when specific types of files are selected to only be allowed the file chooser added has the correct validation. A file chooser that only allows images to be uploaded should be added.
F11d	Ability to add a document upload field	Typical	Types of files allowed: document	This tests that when specific types of files are selected to only be allowed the file chooser added has the correct validation. A file chooser that only allows documents to be uploaded should be added.
F11e	Ability to add a document upload field	Typical	Types of files allowed: video	This tests that when specific types of files are selected to only be allowed the file chooser added has the correct validation. A file chooser that only allows videos to be uploaded should be added.
F12a	Ability to delete questions	Typical		This tests that when the delete question button is pressed the question is deleted from the system.

				The question should be removed from the system and no longer be displayed in the table.
F12b	Ability to delete questions	Erroneous		This tests that when no question is selected, and the delete button is pressed, no question is deleted. No question should be deleted.
F13a	Ability to sort questions by difficulty	Typical		This tests that the difficulty sort works correctly. The list of questions should be sorted into ascending difficulty order.
F13b	Ability to sort questions by difficulty	Boundary	2 questions have the same difficulty	This tests that the difficulty sort works correctly. The list of questions should be sorted into ascending difficulty order.
F14a	Ability to sort questions by type	Typical		This tests that the type sort works correctly. The list of questions should be sorted into ascending alphabetical type order
F14b	Ability to sort questions by type	Boundary	2 questions have the same type	This tests that the type sort works correctly. The list of questions should be sorted into ascending alphabetical type order
F15a	Ability to filter questions by difficulty	Typical	Filter difficulty: 2	This tests that the difficulty filter works correctly. Only questions of difficulty 2 should be displayed in the table.
F16a	Ability to filter questions by type	Typical	Filter type: Email	This tests that the type filter works correctly. Only questions of type "Email" should be displayed in the table.
F17a	Addresses should be looked up via the google maps API to autofill information	Typical	Entry: Runshaw college	This tests that the google maps api lookup works correctly. As the user types a drop down should appear with results from the google maps autofill api.
F17b	Addresses should be looked up via the google maps API to autofill information	Typical	Entry: Runshaw college <No internet connection>	This tests that the google maps api lookup works correctly. As the user types nothing should happen, the system should not error.

F18a	Ability to export a question to file	Typical	Try each of the questions: Name, Gender, Address, Email, Days available, and CV Upload	This tests that the exporting of questions works correctly. The questions should be exported to file. The file should have extension .question.
F19a	Ability to import a question from file	Typical	Import the just exported questions: Name, Gender, Address, Email, Days available, and CV Upload	This tests that the importing of questions works correctly. The exported questions should be loaded from file.
F20a	Ability to attempt a question	Typical	Data used: Email question	This tests that opening a question works as intended. The question should be opened up in a window for the user to attempt. The window should be the same window that is used for attempting forms and should have a submit button. This is only being tested for 1 question type because the logic used is the same for all questions.
F21a	Ability to submit a question	Typical	Data used: Email question	This tests that submitting a question works as intended. The question should have its validation routine called. If the validation was successful "form completed" should be displayed. Otherwise, the user should be informed of where they went wrong. This is only being tested for 1 question type because the logic used is the same for all questions.
F22a	Ability to create forms	Typical	Data used: Form title: test form Form difficulty: 4 Form description: this is a test form Questions: Name, gender, address	This tests that the form creation works correctly. A form should be added to the system which has the data specified to the right.
F22b	Ability to create forms	Erroneous	Data used:	This tests that the form creation works correctly.

			Form title: <blank> Form difficulty: 4 Form description: this is a test form Questions: Name, gender, address	A dialog should appear telling the user that they need to enter a title.
F22c	Ability to create forms	Erroneous	Data used: Form title: test form Form difficulty: <blank> Form description: this is a test form Questions: Name, gender, address	This tests that the form creation works correctly. A dialog should appear telling the user that they need to enter a difficulty.
F22d	Ability to create forms	Erroneous	Data used: Form title: test form Form difficulty: 4 Form description: <blank> Questions: Name, gender, address	This tests that the form creation works correctly. A dialog should appear telling the user that they need to enter a description.
F23a	Ability to create forms from user weaknesses	Typical		This tests that when the attempt form from user weaknesses button is pressed a form that contains 3 questions that the user struggles with the most is opened. A new window should be opened that contains the 3 questions that the user struggles with the most. (The algorithm and criteria for this can be found in the design document)
F24a	Ability to sort forms by difficulty	Typical		This tests that the difficulty sort works correctly. The list of forms should be sorted into ascending difficulty order.
F24b	Ability to sort forms by difficulty	Boundary	2 forms have the same difficulty	This tests that the difficulty sort works correctly. The list of forms should be sorted into ascending difficulty order.

F25a	Ability to filter forms by difficulty	Typical	Filter difficulty: 2	This tests that the difficulty filter works correctly. Only forms of difficulty 2 should be displayed in the table.
F26a	Ability to filter forms by types of questions tested	Typical	Filter type: Email Filter type: Email, address	This tests that the type filter works correctly. For the first filter, only forms that have an email question in should be displayed. For the second filter, only forms that have both email, and address questions in should be displayed.
F27a	Ability to edit forms	Typical	Form being edited: Job application	This tests that loading a form to edit works correctly. All of the information about the form should be loaded in the create forms panel and the question should be added to the question preview.
F27b	Ability to edit forms	Typical	Form being edited: Job application Title: changed from "Job application" to "Job form" Description: changed from "This is a mock-up job application" to "This is a form that tests skills that will be required in a job application form." Difficulty: changed from "8" to "7"	This tests that altering the data stored about a form works correctly. The form's title, description, and difficulty should be changed.
F27c	Ability to edit forms	Typical	Form being edited: Job application Phone number question added to the general information section	This tests that altering the questions in a form works correctly. A phone number question should be added to the form in the general information section.
F28a	Ability to delete forms	Typical	Form to delete: Test form to delete	This tests that deleting a form works correctly. The form should be removed from the system.

F29a	Ability to export a form to file	Typical	Try each of the forms: Job application, Passport application, Getting started	This tests that the exporting of forms works correctly. The forms should be exported to file. The file should have extension .form.
F30a	Ability to import a form from file	Typical	Import the just exported forms: Job application, Passport application, Getting started	This tests that the importing of forms works correctly. The exported forms should be loaded from file.
F31a	Ability to attempt a form	Typical	Data used: Job application form	This tests that opening a form works as intended. The form should be opened up in a window for the user to attempt. This is only being tested for 1 form because the logic used is the same for all forms.
F32a	Ability to submit a form	Typical	Data used: Job application form	This tests that submitting a form works as intended. Each question should have its validation routine called. If the validation was successful "form completed" should be displayed. Otherwise, the user should be informed of where they went wrong. This is only being tested for 1 form because the logic used is the same for all forms.
F33a	The time taken to complete each question should be stored	Typical	Data used: Job application form	This checks that the timing of how long a user takes for each question is accurately measured. The form will be attempted similar to how a real form will be attempted and I will time by hand how long the I spend on each question. I will then compare this with the times that the system recorded. The times should be within +- 5 seconds.
F34a	The number of times that they've failed the validation check for a question should be stored	Typical	Data used: Job application form	This checks that the number of times a user fails each question is accurately recorded. The form will be attempted similar to how a real form will be attempted and I will count by hand how many times I fail each question. I will then compare this with the numbers that the system recorded.

				The number of attempts that I record and the number that the system records should match exactly.
F35a	Ability to add users	Typical	username: test1 password: test first name: bob last name: alice date of birth: 01-04-2005 phone number: 01201543413	This tests that adding a user works correctly. A new user should be added to the system with the details specified.
F35b	Ability to add users	Typical		This tests that pressing cancel on any entry dialog cancels the process of adding a user. If cancel is pressed when adding a user the dialog should be closed and no more dialogs should appear.
F35c	First name, last name, Date of birth and phone number should be stored for each user	Typical	Encryption key is correct: "newkey"	This checks that the user database can be successfully decrypted. When the user tab is selected the user should be prompted to enter the key to decrypt the database. Once they have entered the correct key the database should be decrypted.
F35d	First name, last name, Date of birth and phone number should be stored for each user	Erroneous	Encryption key is incorrect: "wrongkey"	When this key is entered an error message should be produced that tells the user that the encryption key is incorrect.
F35e	First name, last name, Date of birth and phone number should be stored for each user	Typical	New encryption key is: "changedkey"	The user panel should be opened the database should then be decrypted. The save database button should then be pressed and the new encryption key should be entered. This tests that changing the encryption key works correctly.
F36a	Ability to edit users	Typical	The user account bob123 should be edited. The following should be changed. Password: "lemonlemon" Date of birth: 01-02-2003	This tests that editing the information stored about a user works correctly. Bob's information should be amended and updated in the database.

F37a	Ability to delete users	Typical	The user with username "testUserToDelete" should be deleted.	This tests that deleting users works correctly. The user should be deleted and removed from the table.
F38a	Ability to search through users	Typical	Search term "bob"	This tests that the first name filter works correctly. Only users with the first name "bob" should be displayed.
F39a	Ability to produce a report on the user's weak areas/progress	Typical	A report should be produced for the bob123 user	This tests that a report is successfully generated. A report detailing bob's statistics should be produced and displayed to the user for them to preview.
F39b	Ability to produce a report on the user's weak areas/progress	Typical	Bob's report should be printed	This tests that the report is properly formatted onto a4. The report should print successfully and be correctly formatted on a4 paper to fill the entire page.
F39c	Ability to produce a report on the user's weak areas/progress	Typical	Both bob123 and fmaccourt1 should be selected in the user table.	This tests that producing multiple reports at once works correctly. A multipage printed document should be produced. Each page should be a user's report.
F40a	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	attempt the following forms: Basic information, Contact information, Job application	This tests that the system correctly works out the percentage of each form that the user has attempted. Each form should be attempted, a few questions filled in and then closed. The percentage complete should be calculated by hand and then compared to the percentage that the system has calculated. The system calculated percentage should match exactly with the percentage calculated by hand.
F40b	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Name question	The text in a text field should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a text field in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the text in the text field should still be there.
F40c	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Gender question	The selected radio button should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a radio button question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the radio buttons should have the same option selected.

F40d	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Title question	The selected option should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a combobox question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the combobox should have the same option selected.
F40e	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Days available question	The selected checkboxes should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a check boxes question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the checkboxes should have the same options selected.
F40f	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Password question	The entered passwords should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a password fields question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the password fields should have the same passwords entered.
F40g	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Birthday question	The entered date should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a calendar entry question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the calendar entry should have the same date selected.
F40h	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	CV upload question	The selected file should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a file chooser question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it.

				When the user opens the form again after closing the system the file chooser should have the same file selected.
F40i	How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked	Typical	Address question	The entered address should be saved between system reboots. When a user attempts a location entry question in the form the next time that they attempt the form it should be in the same state that they left it. When the user opens the form again after closing the system the address entry should have the same address entered.
F41a	The attendance for each user should be automatically tracked	Typical	Bob should be logged into the system.	This tests that the system automatically adds the current date to the list of dates that the user has attended. The current date should be added to the list of dates that the user has attended.
F41b	The attendance for each user should be automatically tracked	Typical	Bob should be logged in again.	This tests that the system doesn't add a date to the list of dates that the user has attended if the date is already in the list. This avoids duplicates. The current date shouldn't be added to the list.
F42a	Login page which allows users or admins to login	Typical	username: bob123 password: orangepineapple	This tests that the system allows a user to login when the username and password are correct. The system should login the user "bob123"
F42b	Login page which allows users or admins to login	Erroneous	username: bob123 password: 3243	This tests that the system doesn't allow a user with invalid credentials to login. The system shouldn't allow the user to login and an error message telling them that their credentials are incorrect should appear.
F43a	There should be a main menu panel	Typical	user: bob123 user: fmaccourt1	This tests that there are different main menus for each type of user account.

				Bob is an admin therefore he should be displayed the admin main menu. fmaccourt1 is a regular user therefore they should be displayed the regular user main menu.
F44a	Questions that have failed their validation check should be highlighted	Typical	form: Job application	This tests that questions which have failed their validation checks are correctly indicated to the user. The form should be attempted with a few questions attempted wrong. The questions that have failed their validation checks should be highlighted with a red border.
F45a	There should be a statistics screen which shows the user's progress	Typical	question: Name, gender, Email	This tests that the data about a user's attempts of each question are correctly loaded from file. Each question should be selected in turn and viewed. The graphs and labels should be correctly populated with data from the user's attempts of the question.
F46a	The admin user should be able to take a register	Typical		This tests that the register works correctly. The register should be completed and fmaccourt1 should be marked as present. it should then be checked that they have had the current date added to the list of dates that they have attended.
F46b	The admin user should be able to take a register	Typical		This tests that the users which have attended most recently are at the top of the register. bob123 and fmaccourt1 should be at the top of the register because they have attended most recently.

I created a question with a text field. I then gave it the required difficulty, title, and type. I saved the question to the database and navigated to the view questions tab. As you can see the question was added to the system (it's the highlighted row). I then pressed attempt question to ensure that the graphical components of the question were saved correctly.

The image shows two side-by-side screenshots of a web form. Both screenshots show a text input field with the label "Address" (indicated by a red star icon). The first screenshot shows the text "Run|" in the input field, and the dropdown menu displays the following suggestions: "Runcorn, UK", "Runcorn QLD, Australia", "Rundle Mall, Adelaide SA, Australia", "Rungis, France", and "Runaway Bay QLD, Australia". The second screenshot shows the text "Runsh|" in the input field, and the dropdown menu displays the following suggestions: "Runshaw College, Leyland, UK", "Runshaw Lane, Euxton, Chorley, UK", "Runshaw College Euxton Campus, Euxton, UK", "Runshaw College, Langdale Road, Leyland, UK", and "Runshaw Place, San Jose, CA, USA". Both screenshots have a "Submit" button at the bottom right.

		Pass I created a copy of the system that had no questions in its database so that I could test importing all of the previously imported questions. I then imported all of the previously exported questions. (Only the address question is pictured). I then went to the view questions tab to ensure that all questions were present in the table, which they were. I then created a form and added all of the questions to it. As you can see all of the questions were added to the form and are correctly displayed in the form preview, this shows that they were correctly imported.

	Pass I attempted the email question. I entered an incorrect email address. I then pressed submit and the question was highlighted as incorrect and some text at the top of the window appeared which informed me where I went wrong. This shows that when the submit button is pressed the validation method of a question is called. It also shows that the <code>getErrorMessage()</code> method is called when the user fails the validation check and the error string is displayed at the top of the question. I then reattempted the question and entered a valid email address. I then pressed the submit button and then the form complete dialog was displayed. This shows that when a question passes its validation check the form complete routine is triggered.

I opened the create forms tab. I then added the name, gender, and address questions. I then entered "Test form" as the title. Then I selected difficulty 4 and entered the description as "This is a test form". Then I pressed save form. I selected yes in the "would you like to save?" dialog. I then navigated to the view forms tab and saw that the form was in the table. I then pressed the attempt form button and the form was loaded and all of the questions were there. This shows that the form was correctly saved and added to the system.

 The screenshot shows the 'Form Filler' application. The 'Create forms' tab is selected. In the 'Form information' section, the 'Form title' field is empty, 'Form difficulty' is set to 4, and the 'Form description' is 'This is a test form'. Below this is a table titled 'Select Questions' with columns 'Title', 'Difficulty', and 'Type'. The table lists various question types like Gender, Title, Name, Password, Phone number, Address, Days available, Email, Photo ID Upload, and Date of Birth, each with a difficulty level and a type. At the bottom of the table are buttons for 'Type sort', 'Difficulty sort', 'Preview', and 'Add'. Below the table are three buttons: 'Add header' (blue), 'Reset Form' (red), and 'Save Form' (green). The 'Form preview' section on the right shows the form layout with fields for Name, Gender (radio buttons for Male, Female, Other), and Address. To the right of the preview are three sets of icons: a red star, a trash can, and a double arrow. <table border="1"><thead><tr><th>Title</th><th>Difficulty</th><th>Type</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>Gender</td><td>1</td><td>Radio-buttons</td></tr><tr><td>Title</td><td>2</td><td>Drop-down</td></tr><tr><td>Name</td><td>2</td><td>Name</td></tr><tr><td>Password</td><td>4</td><td>Password</td></tr><tr><td>Phone number</td><td>4</td><td>Phone</td></tr><tr><td>Address</td><td>5</td><td>Address</td></tr><tr><td>Days available</td><td>5</td><td>Checkboxes</td></tr><tr><td>Email</td><td>6</td><td>Email</td></tr><tr><td>Photo ID Upload</td><td>7</td><td>Photo ID</td></tr><tr><td>Date of Birth</td><td>8</td><td>Calendar</td></tr></tbody></table>	Title	Difficulty	Type	Gender	1	Radio-buttons	Title	2	Drop-down	Name	2	Name	Password	4	Password	Phone number	4	Phone	Address	5	Address	Days available	5	Checkboxes	Email	6	Email	Photo ID Upload	7	Photo ID	Date of Birth	8	Calendar	Pass I opened the create forms tab. I logged in as “bob123”. I then navigated to the view forms tab. I pressed the “Attempt form based on weaknesses” button and a form was opened for me to attempt. The form contained the Email address, phone number, and birthday questions.

I then generated a report for bob123 to ensure that the questions added were the ones that bob struggled with the most. Email, phone, and calendar (birthday is an unused type the birthday question is of type calendar) are the questions with the highest number of attempts needed to correct.

I created a copy of the system with no forms or questions in its databases. I then imported the job application form.

The form was successfully imported and as you can see all of its questions are now in the question database and the form itself in in the form database.

However, the type filter hasn't been updated for all of the new types added to the system. This is the same in the view questions tab. They should have checkboxes/radio buttons for each type in the system.

I attempted the job application form. I filled in the first page with correct answers and then pressed the next button. I was allowed to progress to the next page, this shows that I answered all questions correctly.

I then attempted the next page of the form. I didn't upload a file with the file chooser and then I pressed submit. An error message appeared at the top of the form informing me of where I went wrong. The file upload question was also given a red border and I wasn't allowed to submit the form.

I then uploaded a file of the correct type and then pressed the submit button. The form complete dialog was displayed.

I attempted the Job application form. I timed how long it took me to complete each question by hand. I then checked the databases to see what length of time the system had recorded for each question.

This is what the system output

[{Q53642376=26, Q14805999=9,
Q84848110=6, Q64356881=6,
Q77874280=15, Q41647821=12,
Q67918670=2, Q69482524=6}]

This is a breakdown of the data.

Q53642376 is the title question. The system timed 26s whereas I timed 3s.

Q64356881 is the name question. The system timed 6s whereas I timed 7s.

Q67918670 is the gender question. The system timed 2s and I timed 2s.

Q77874280 is the phone number question. The system timed 15s and I timed 14s.

Q84848110 is the email address question. The system timed 6s and I timed 8s.

Q14805999 is the address question. The system timed 9s and I timed 8s.

	Q69482524 is the days available question. The system timed 6s and I timed 6s. Q41647821 is the CV upload question. The system timed 12s whereas I timed 10s. I think that all of these times are within acceptable tolerance $\pm 5s$. The only question that stands out as being unacceptable is the title question. This large discrepancy is because the system starts timing how long the user spends on the first question as soon as the form opens however I only started attempting the form around 20s after I opened it because I had to get my stopwatch started. When users use the system they will begin attempting the form as soon as they open it so this will not be an issue therefore, despite the large discrepancy I will pass this test.

I opened and attempted the job application form. As I attempted the form, I counted the number of times that I failed the validation check of each question. I then checked the system's database to see how many errors it had recorded.

Q53642376 is the title question. The system counted 1 and I counted 1.

Q64356881 is the name question. The system counted 0 and I counted 0.

Q67918670 is the gender question. The system counted 0 and I counted 0.

Q77874280 is the phone number question. The system counted 2 and I counted 2.

Q84848110 is the email address question. The system counted 0 and I counted 0.

Q14805999 is the address question. The system counted 0 and I counted 0.

Q69482524 is the days available question. The system counted 0 and I counted 0.

Q41647821 is the CV upload question. The system counted 1 and I counted 1.

The system's counts match up exactly with my manual counts. This means that this feature works as intended and that the system correctly tracks the number of times that a user has failed the validation check for each question.

I opened the users panel. I then pressed the add new user button at the bottom of the screen. I entered “test1” for the username, “test” for the password, “bob” for the first name, “alice” for the last name, “01-04-2005” for the date of birth, and “01201543413” for the phone number. A dialog then appeared telling me that the user had been added to the system. In the last screenshot, the user table is pictured. This shows that the new user has been added to the bottom of the table.

I logged in as "bob123". I then navigated to the users tab. As you can see the first name, last name, date of birth, and phone number are encrypted. I then entered the key "newkey" into the input field.

The database was then decrypted.

I navigated to the view users screen. I then entered the key “wrongkey” into the encryption key prompt. I pressed ok and then the system showed an error which said that the encryption key was incorrect and the database wasn’t decrypted.

I navigated to the view users screen. I then entered the encryption key "newkey" and decrypted the database. I then pressed the save database button and pressed yes on the prompt that appeared asking me whether I wanted to change the encryption key. I then entered "changedkey" as the new key. I then restarted the system. I then tested the old key and that no longer decrypted the database. I then entered "changedkey" and this correctly decrypted the database. This shows that the database can be correctly decrypted.

I navigated to the users tab. I then double clicked a cell of the table to edit it however I wasn't allowed to edit it and first had to press the edit table button (this is intended behaviour.). I then changed bob123's password to "lemonlemon" and his date of birth to "01-02-2003". I then pressed the save changes button. I pressed no when the system asked me if I wanted to change the encryption key and the database was saved. I then double clicked a cell of the table again and I wasn't allowed to edit it. This shows that the system correctly re-locked the table after saving the changes to file.

I then restarted the system and viewed the user table. The changes were still there which means that the database was saved correctly.

I navigated to the users tab. I then selected the row of the table which corresponded to the user with username “testUserToDelete”. I then pressed the delete user button. The user was then deleted from the table.

In the second screenshot you can see that the user has been deleted from the system.

This is confirmed when looking in the user credential database - there is no entry for the testUserToDelete user.

Following on from the previous test, I pressed the print report button in the report preview. A print dialog then appeared for me to select which printer to print the file to.

I printed the report to PDF (rather than a printer). The output pdf was a4 sized and correctly formatted. The table is scaled correctly to fill the document. This shows that the print report function works correctly.

I navigated to the users tab. I then selected the rows that corresponded to “bob123” and “fmaccourt1”. I then pressed the produce reports button.

A print dialog then appeared allowing me to print the reports. I printed the reports to pdf. The pdf was a 2 page a4 document containing each report.

This shows that producing multiple reports at once works correctly.

F40a How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked

Evidence

Result & Actual Commentary

The image displays three sequential screenshots of a web-based 'Job Application' form, illustrating a user's progress and a subsequent error.

- Page 1 of 2: The initial form contains sections for 'General Information' (Title: Ms, Name: Harris, Gender: Other), 'Contact information' (Email Address), and 'Job information' (Address: Runshaw College, Days available: Wednesday, CV upload button). A 'Next' button is at the bottom right.
- Page 2 of 2: The second screenshot shows the form after clicking 'Next'. It displays the 'Job information' section with the address and days available. A 'Back' button is at the bottom left, and a 'Submit' button is at the bottom right.
- Form complete: A third screenshot shows the 'Form complete!' message dialog box appearing over the 'Submit' button. The dialog has an information icon and an 'OK' button.

Fail

I opened the job application form and filled it all in apart from the non-required email question. I then pressed the submit button and the form complete dialog opened. However, on opening the view forms dialog the times completed hadn't been incremented and the percent complete wasn't 100%. This means that the form isn't reset when it's opened again.

100% complete and the times completed with incremented as required.

I then attempted the basic information form. I filled in only 2 out of the 4 questions. This means that the percentage complete should be 50%. I closed the form and checked the table and the percentage complete was 50%.

I then attempted the contact information form. I attempted 3 of the 4 questions. I then closed the form and checked the table and the percentage complete in the table was 75%. This is correct.

The screenshot displays two overlapping web forms. The background form is titled 'Password question form' and includes a red star icon with the label 'Password' and two input fields for a password question and answer. A green 'Submit' button is at the bottom. The foreground form is titled 'Login' and contains a 'Username:' label with the text 'bob123' entered, a 'Password:' label with an empty input field, and a blue 'Login' button.

I created a new form with the password question in it because none of the other forms had a password question in them.

I then attempted the form (while logged in as bob123) and filled in the password question. I then restarted the system. I attempted the password question for again and the same passwords were entered into the password fields, this shows that the passwords are correctly saved between system restarts.

Continuing from the last test, I then closed the system and logged in as him again. The date wasn't added to the list of sessions that he had attended again. This shows that the system correctly avoids duplicate dates.

	Pass I started the system and logged in as “bob123”. bob123 is an admin account therefore the admin main menu was displayed. I then restarted the system and logged in as fmaccount1. fmaccount1 is a regular user account therefore they have access to the regular user main menu. As you can see the system gives each user the correct main menu.

I navigated to the view forms tab and attempted the job application form.

I attempted the form as a user would. Each time that I pressed the submit button the questions that failed their validation check had a red border put around them. At the top of the window there was also a small error message for each question that was filled in incorrectly.

When I corrected each question the red border disappeared.

Fail

I filled out the register marking fmaccourt1 as present. However the user table didn't have the current date appended to the list of sessions that fmaccourt1 had been present at.

Fmaccourt1 doesn't have the current date (23-01-2019) in the list of dates that they have attended.

I navigated to the users tab. As you can see bob123 and fmaccourt1 are the only users that have been present recently therefore they should be at the top of the register. I pressed the take register button and the register opened. I then verified that bob123 and fmaccourt1 were at the top of the register (which they were) and the rest of the users was in alphabetical order below them.

8.3 Beta Testing

Question and Form creation

The beta tester takes the role of an admin user that wants to create a new question which asks for the user's dietary requirements. They then want to add this question to a form which asks for the user's name, email address, phone number, dietary requirements, and some photo ID.

ID	Task	Questions
1.1	Login to the system using the credentials "bob123" "orangepineapple"	Approximately how long did the process take?
1.2	Navigate to the create questions tab.	Was it easy to navigate to this tab?
1.3	Create a question with label text "Tick any relevant dietary requirements". A set of checkboxes should be added with the options ["Vegetarian", "Vegan", "Halal", "Gluten free"]. The question should have title "Dietary requirements", type "checkboxes", and difficulty "4". Add the question and save the database.	Are there any parts of the process that could be improved? Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.4	Navigate to the create forms tab.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.5	Enter "Party planning" as the form title, "6" as the difficulty, and "This form gets basic information required to run a party from the user." as the description.	Were there any difficulties in entering this information? Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.6	Add a header that says "About you"	Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.7	Add the name, email address, phone number, and dietary requirements questions to the form.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.8	Mark the phone number question as not required by clicking the red star to make it disappear on the question.	Is this a good method of marking questions as not required? Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.9	Add another header this time titled "Food"	Rate ease of use from: 1-10

1.10	Add the dietary requirements question.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.11	Save the form.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10
1.12	Close the system
1.13	Detail any additional comments

Edit and export forms

This scenario puts the tester in the role of the admin user that wants to make a change to a form and then export it so the users can attempt it. The admin user will edit the job application form and add a new question to it, move a few questions around and then save and export it.

Reports and user management

This scenario puts the tester in the role of an admin user at the start of a session. The user should take a register. Edit the name of a user and then print the reports of multiple users.

Importing a form, attempting it, and using the statistics screen.

The tester takes the role of a regular user at the club. They will import and form and then attempt it. They will then view their progress by looking at the view statistics screen. This will be a very typical use of the system at the computer club.

8.31 Selected Beta Testers

I selected 4 beta testers. For the system. I provided them with the system and the scenario documents / tables detailed above. They tested the system on their own computers. I chose to allow them to test the system on their own computers to ensure that the system worked correctly on a variety of computers.

They followed the instructions provided and answered the feedback questions.

Tester	Scenario(s)	Competence	Reason for choice
Mayur	"Question and form creation", "Reports and user management"	Professional Java Developer	Mayur has a very high level of competency in in Java and is very familiar with commercial software systems. This means that he will be able to give very good and detailed feedback about my system.
Harry	"Edit and export forms"	Peer	Harry is undertaking a similar project to me and so will be able to suitably test it.
Josh	"Attempting questions and a form created from user	Professional software developer	Josh has a very close relationship to Steph and so understands exactly what the system needs to do. He's also a software developer and so will be able to give good and relevant feedback as he understands what's required.

	weaknesses"
James	"Importing a form, attempting it, and using the statistics screen"	Peer	Harry is undertaking a similar project to me and so will be able to suitably test it.

ID	Task	Questions
1.1	Login to the system using the credentials "bob123" "orangepineapple"	Approximately how long did the process take? 5 seconds This is an acceptable amount of time for this process to take.
1.2	Navigate to the create questions tab.	Was it easy to navigate to this tab? yes This is good because it's important that the users can easily navigate the system.
1.3	Create a question with label text "Tick any relevant dietary requirements". A set of checkboxes should be added with the options ["Vegetarian", "Vegan", "Halal", "Gluten free"]. The question should have title "Dietary requirements", type "checkboxes", and difficulty "4". Add the question and save the database.	Are there any parts of the process that could be improved? Improvements would be layout of fields to be a little closer together and buttons/text boxes to be a relative shape and size to entry: This could make the entry a little more intuitive to fill in but I think that it would negatively affect usability because the system would be more cluttered.

		 Rate ease of use from: 1-10 7 This shows that the process of creating questions still has room for improvement.
1.4	Navigate to the create forms tab.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 This again shows that navigation of the system is easy.

1.5	Enter "Party planning" as the form title, "6" as the difficulty, and "This form gets basic information required to run a party from the user." as the description.	Were there any difficulties in entering this information? Form layout could move labels closer to fields I agree this would make the panel look more visually appealing and would make it easier to see which label corresponds to which field. Rate ease of use from: 1-10 9
1.6	Add a header that says "About you"	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 This shows that the add header feature is easy to use.
1.7	Add the name, email address, phone number, and dietary requirements questions to the form.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 6 – I couldn't add multiple at one time using control key I had to do them 1 at a time. Also the add button is not prominent considering this is made to add things. It would be easier to add questions if you could add multiple at once. I agree that the add button is also a little small and doesn't stand out.
1.8	Mark the phone number question as not required by clicking the red star to make it disappear on the question.	Is this a good method of marking questions as not required? Yes Rate ease of use from: 1-10: 10 This shows that this is a good and easy to use way of marking the questions as required.
1.9	Add another header this time titled "Food"	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10

1.10	Add the dietary requirements question.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 This shows the tester is happy with adding a single question and so just has issues with adding multiple questions.
1.11	Save the form.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 This shows that the process of saving a form is easy to use.

2.1	Login to the system using the credentials "bob123" "orangepineapple"	Approximately how long did the process take? 5 seconds This is a good amount of time for the process to take.
2.2	Navigate to the create forms tab.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 Don't know what the star does when making a form? I now realise it is a required field, but was initially unclear. Even though it's initially unclear what the star means, I will not be adding something that tells the user what the star means because the user will only have to be told once by Steph or the other volunteer than then they will know what it means. Also, because the beta tester was able to figure it out by themselves, it shows that the system is intuitive and there is less need for there to be a tutorial on this aspect. How does the upload file feature work – really is an 8 in difficulty The difficulty is set by the question creator rather than by the system. Therefore, there is no room to improve this. If the file upload question should have a lower difficulty Steph can create one with a lower difficulty. Overall really easy. Especially the templates that are premade, so I give it an 8.5/10 for ease of use. This is good because it shows that the create forms feature is intuitive and easy to use. This means that it will be easy and quick for Steph to create new forms for the system.
2.3	Load the job application form to be edited	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 9.5/10

		Is this a good method of allowing the user to load a form to edit, what can be improved? Sorry I have put quite a lot of the comments in the above box, but yes I really like the way you have the forms being easily loaded. Only minor gripe is that it can be a little difficult to see at times what object on the GUI is connected to the side selection area at which points, but this may just be me being bad at looking properly. The buttons are quite a distance from the elements of the form when the window is maximised. The small space between each question also makes it difficult to see which buttons belong to each element, I agree with the tester.
2.4	Add the date of birth question and move it to the general information section.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 7/10 Is using the buttons to move the questions up and down a good method, what can be improved? Felt a bit hard to navigate through all the buttons, having to move up each time, a possible alternative to this would be to have a move button that you could click to select and then click again in the position you want it in to move it to there? But maybe this would be even more difficult to navigate. I agree that it's tedious to move questions about the form by pressing the up and down buttons, especially because the buttons move with the question. However, I think that a better method of fixing this issue would be allowing the admin to drag the questions to rearrange them in the forms.
2.5	Move the phone number question to the contact information section.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 8/10 because I didn't have to move it as far, it does feel nice to be able to move them around the form so fluidly. This shows that the move question feature is only an issue when the questions are being moved a greater distance.
2.6	Mark the CV question as required by pressing the blank button next to it to make it have a red star.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 Is this a clear and easy to use method of marking questions as required, what can be improved? As you can see, I could not initially see what the stars mean, but now that I have thought about it is more clear, but initially I was not too sure. Maybe you could have a key at the top that simply told the user whether or not it was required?

		See my comments on task 2.2
2.7	Save the form	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 9.5/10, the multiple popups, especially the last one felt a bit overbearing but I don't know how this could be improved. It could be better to just have one popup but with multiple options e.g. close without saving and close and save.
2.8	Navigate to the import and export tab.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10/10 This agrees with what other testers have said - the navigation is very easy to use.
2.9	Export the form with the filename jobapplication	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10/10 Is this a good method of allowing the user to export a form what can be improved? Very intuitive and nice.
2.10	Detail any additional comments	If I press cancel on the users tab, then to decrypt the database I have to click off and then back on to get the popup again. Minor gripe but would maybe want to have a button to enter a decryption key? It would definitely be better to have a button that allowed the user to decrypt the database rather than having to click onto the tab again. The form files, are they a user created file type? And as a result can only be opened through the system? Or am I being obtuse? They are a system specific file type and can only be opened by the system.

3.1	Login to the system using the credentials "bob123" "orangepineapple"	Approximately how long did the process take? 5 seconds This is an acceptable amount of time for this process to take.
3.2	Press the take register button and enter the decryption key "changed key"	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 10 This shows that the process of taking a register and decrypting the database is easy to use. Initially I was worried that this could be an intuitive process because, at first glance, decrypting the database seems to be completely unrelated to taking the register so the decrypt database popup could confuse the user.
3.3	Mark several users as present.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 8 Is this a good register layout, what can be improved?

		Works fine but can't move it around the screen, the popup stays where it is!  This is an issue that I haven't been able to reproduce. The register is programmed as a fully moveable window. I think the issue here is that, due to Windows (the O/S) scaling, the close, minimise, and maximise buttons are taking up the full width of the window header. This means that there is no region that the user can click to drag the window. This could be fixed by making the register slightly wider.
3.4	Close the register and navigate to the users tab. Change the name of "asydneyt" to "Alice". Then save the user's database and don't change the encryption key.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10 8 Is this a good method of editing users, what can be improved? Good method but could have a better user experience than allowing the user to edit the whole table, What was difficult about this method of editing users, what can be improved? Allow user to click one row to edit that specific row in a pop up. I think that this is a good suggestion because it means that editing the table could be less confusing for the user. It also means that no accidental edits will be made to the rows of the other users'.

Is this a good method of allowing the admin user to produce multiple user reports at once, what can be improved?

Yes, could have a success pop up when it's completed and even an option to save instead of print. Many users won't know how to 'print to pdf'

This could be a useful feature however the main purpose is to print directly to a printer therefore adding an additional button to save to computer could confuse the process.

A success popup would be difficult to implement. There is no reason to have one before the reports are printed as the print dialog only appears once the reports have been generated and it would be difficult to program one after pressing print because the software will not know when the reports have finished printing. It could be useful to have a popup that says that the jobs have been sent to the printer.

Importing a form, attempting it, and using the statistics screen

Actual comments from the tester, my comments are in red.

ID	Task	Questions
4.1	Login to the system using the username "fmaccourt1" and password "pOolwgp6".	Approximately how long did the process take? Around half a second. This is an acceptable amount of time for this process to take.
4.2	Navigate to the import and export tab. Import the job application form that is stored in the exported forms folder in the form filler folder.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. Is this an easy method of importing forms, what can be improved? At first not clear where to navigate to find the form, despite being labelled 'Exported Forms'. Initially navigated to 'forms' however not particularly an issue. This could potentially be an issue for the users at the club because they are likely to struggle more than James with the system therefore as James has had an issue the users are more likely too. However, I think that it will be fine because James says that it was only a small confusion. Otherwise method is fine.

4.3	Navigate to the view forms screen. Attempt the form that you just imported. Fill in all of the questions.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 9 Is the form attempting process easy to use, what can be improved? Quite standard process of filling out the form and so performs quite well. Not immediately obvious that the form is selected via the left panel. Possibly have a label stating to select a form by highlighting a row on the left panel. A label would be quite useful so the users know exactly what to do however Steph said that the system shouldn't have a large amount of help because the users would struggle to read it and learn better by doing. Do you think that it accurately mimics real-world forms, what can be improved? Form itself accurately mimics real forms, and so I believe there to be no apparent improvements This is good because one of the aims of the system was to accurately mimic real world forms. Is the validation extensive and accurate, what can be improved? Very good validation that ensures that what is entered is as expected, prevents any anomalous data. This was another important feature of the system therefore it's good that it performs well. How is the layout of the form, what can be improved? Form layout is standard and so there is no need for improvement James has given this area of the system a very good review. This shows that the system is fit for purpose as this is one of the most important areas of the system.
4.4	Navigate to the statistics screen and view the statistics for several questions.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 7 Are the statistics meaningful, what can be improved?

		Very insightful data, that provides some useful information on progress. Not apparent exactly how to utilise the panel, looks quite intimidating with so many different areas. I tried to design the statistics panel to be as easy to use as possible. The design of the panel may need to be improved so that it's easier to use for the users based on this feedback. Some better labelling could make the panel easier to use because it would make what each section is for more apparent. Are the statistics clearly displayed, what can be improved? Statistics are displayed clearly and is apparent what each represent and are meaningful. I'm happy that there are no irrelevant statistics cluttering up the screen because it makes it easier to use.
4.5	Produce and preview a report for the user.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 9 This the report well laid out? Is the preview useful, what can be improved? Presents the basic information regarding each question which is quite helpful, additionally the option to print is welcome and can be quite useful for users.
4.6	Detail any additional comments.	System appears quite intimidating at first glance which may cause users to be unsure how to utilise the system, despite this as long as the user is provided adequate help or tutorial on how to use the system there should be no issue. Steph and the volunteers will be there to guide the users on how to use the system therefore it looks like the users should have no issue using the system from James's comments which shows that the system meets its goal of being user friendly.

Attempting questions and a form created from user weaknesses

ID	Task	Questions
5.1	Login to the system using the username "fmaccourt1" and password "pOolwgp6".	Approximately how long did the process take? 3 Seconds This is an acceptable time for the system to start.
5.2	Navigate to the view questions screen.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 10 This is good because it means that the navigation buttons are very easy to use which is important for the system.
5.3	Using the filters and sort find a question that you would like to attempt. Attempt the question. Repeat for 2 more questions.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 8 This is good because it means that the filters and are very easy to use which is important for the system. This also shows that they are intuitive because I didn't provide any explicit instructions on how to use them. Are the sorts and filters effective and easy to use, what can be improved? Sorts and filters are very easy to use, however 'type filter' only allows for one type to be filtered at a time. This is by design because each question only has 1 type. However, I agree it could potentially be useful to be able to filter by multiple types. Difficulty filter only allows from 1-10, and not say, 5-10. (no flexible range filter). This could be a useful feature because very few questions have the same difficulty. Reset filters, although that works fine - doesn't reset the difficulty bar itself back to 1 This could be a useful feature. What are your thoughts on the process of attempting a question, what can be improved?

		The resolution doesn't fit screen, and I have to full screen the new question window on my laptop so that I can select 'next'-. This shows that the system isn't fully suitable for use on all screen sizes. The sizes of the windows need to be adjusted so that all of the buttons are always accessible. Also, on attempt question, why does it say 'next' to finish - shouldn't it say 'Done', since there will only ever be one question that you're attempting. On my machine the button says submit and on the other PCs I have tested it on it also says submit. I can't reproduce this issue.
5.4	Navigate to the view forms tab.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 10 Same as response from above
5.5	Using the filters and sort find a form that you would like to attempt. Attempt the form.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 7 Same as response from above What are your thoughts of the implementation of the sorts and filters on this screen? The difficulty sort is the only sort, and it's sorted by default - so why have that? Yes, I agree it's a bit of a pointless sort. It should just be performed automatically You could argue there should be a % complete sort or times completed sort. This could be a useful sort for the users because it means that they will easily be able to find forms that they have completed a lot or that are almost completed. My comments on filters are the same as those of questions. Is it useful that they are very similar to the sorts and filters on the view questions screen, what can be improved? Yes, that makes sense for this to be parallel with that of questions. Resolution is still weird though, like with questions.

		Questions and forms use the same displayer therefore if it's fixed for the questions it'll be fixed for the forms.
5.6	Attempt a form created from user weaknesses.	Rate ease of use from: 1-10. 10 Is this a useful feature, what can be improved? Resolution bug.
5.7	Detail any additional comments	The UI looks much nicer and the UX is much clearer, I'm liking this - attendance seems to be largely unimplemented though and stuck at 40%, unless I'm not quite getting something? Better documentation on what the attendance percentage actually represents may be needed. Some documentation or a guide on stats and import/export would be useful. This is in the provided user guide however this wasn't sent to testers. I'm liking this, it's nice! :)

In conclusion, Josh think almost all features of the system are implemented well. There are only a few suggestions for improvements to the sorts and filters. Also the sizing of the attempt form and question windows should be improved.

8.4 Acceptance Testing

I attended a computer club session to observe the class using the system for the first time.

I loaded the system onto all of the computers and then observed as Steph ran the session. I did not take an active role in demonstrating how to use the system so that I would be able to see how Steph and the members managed to use the system without my help because this would show me whether the system is intuitive enough.

When Steph opened the system on a laptop, as the laptops are quite old, it took about 10 seconds for the login window to appear. This meant that Steph ended up opening the system twice a large number of times because she ended up double clicking twice because she thought that the first double click did nothing because it took the login screen a while to appear. It would be an improvement if there was some sort of loading splash screen while the system loads. It also took a long time for the system to load after logging in.

Steph started the session by explaining to the users that the system was for them to practise filling in forms. She then got them to login to the user accounts that she had already created for them.

It took the users about 10 minutes to log in. This is because they struggled to enter the password and kept getting it wrong. The system's prompt telling them that the password was incorrect was useful and they all understood it and retried entering the password rather than needing to call a volunteer to help.

One user was unable to log in because Steph had forgotten to create a user account for them. This was no issue though as Steph was able to quickly login with her account and create a user account for them. However, Steph had some difficulty creating the user account. This is because she closed the system after adding the account without pressing the save changes button. This meant that she had to create the account again because the changes hadn't been saved. It would be useful for the system to have a prompt, to say that there are unsaved changes and whether the user wants to save or discard them, when the user closes the system.

Once the users were logged in, Steph asked them to navigate to the view forms screen. All users managed this without an issue. This shows that the navigation is intuitive and easy to use.

The users then attempted each form in the system in order.

I had developed the system to be fully resizable because I knew that the users all had laptops with different resolutions. However, the attempt forms window had a minimum height. During development I ensured that the window was fully visible on a 720p monitor because I thought that this would be the lowest resolution monitor that the users would have. However, this was wrong and the window was too long for almost all of the users. This meant that the submit button was cut off. When the window could be maximised to fix this issue and so I had to step in to tell them this, however, having to maximise the window was not a good user experience. Some of the users also accidentally minimised the window when they were trying to maximise it. The system should be fully visible on all monitors even the lower resolution ones therefore it's important that the sizing of the form window is improved.

The address entry with the google maps autocomplete api worked perfectly and all of the users understood how to use it with no instruction.

The text overall in the system was a little small for the users. I noticed quite a few leaning in closer to the screen and all of them had to use their reading glasses.

Some users struggled to work out what to do next after finishing a form. This is because the system just tells them that the form is complete and doesn't ask if they want to close the form.

There were some issues with the validation of the questions in the form.

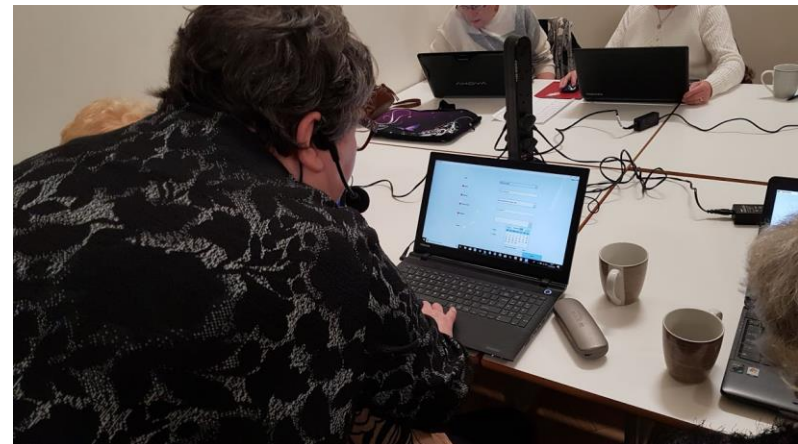

The email address validation didn't work correctly. Emails that started with a capital letter were marked as invalid even though they were valid email addresses. This confused some of the users.

The main question that had incorrect validation and that the users had issues with was by far the file upload questions.

The first issue is that a lot of the users were unsure of what type of file should be uploaded. This needs to be made more clear to them. Another big issue is that once a file was uploaded the users had no way of knowing that the file was uploaded. This meant that some users repeatedly uploaded the same file because they didn't know that the first upload was successful.

The main issue with validation is that certain .jpg files were not being accepted and were marked as incorrect even though JPG is a valid file type. This meant that users were not able to fully complete some forms because the system was wrongly marking their uploaded picture as the wrong type.

Most users struggled to use the file chooser to find files to upload. I think that this is mostly because they haven't had much practice because they have not had the ability to practise uploading files before. The filechooser in the system is a standard one therefore there is not much room to improve the design and the users also need to get used to using standard file choosers.

When the file chooser window opened it didn't always open in the middle of the screen. On some user's computers the file chooser was half off the screen. This made it difficult for them to use and few realised that they could drag it to the centre of the screen. The file chooser should open in the middle of the screen.

There were also a few issues with the date picker question. A few users were unsure on the format that they should enter the date because it wasn't told to them. The date picker was used as a birthday question and so many struggled to enter their birth year because it wasn't clear how to select a pre-2008 year. Once Steph showed them how, however, they all managed it fine.

Finally, once the users had attempted all of the forms, they were shown the statistics screen. Almost all users commented on how they thought that the statistics features were useful. Some users had issues viewing questions in the statistics screen. This is because in the view forms and view questions areas the users could double click the questions and forms to attempt them. However, in the statistics section they couldn't double click the questions to view them. This caused some confusion.

The import and export facilities of the system weren't tested because all of the questions and forms that the users needed were already on the system.

Overall, the acceptance testing was a success. The system worked very well on the whole and there were only a few small validation and navigation issues.

8.5 Summary & Refinements

Overall, testing went well. There weren't any system breaking issues found, only minor issues that shouldn't take too long to fix. Acceptance testing found some very useful information. This is because the users were able to find many more issues than I could myself because they used the system slightly differently than I did because they weren't the ones that made it. I was pleased that the system worked on all of the laptops that the club had despite the wide range of laptops. This was one of the main requirements for the system. There was only one issue with the validation of the system which was with the photo upload. I'm happy that there was only one issue with the validation and that it was just a minor one but I would rather there have been no issues.

The beta testers found quite a few good quality of life improvements. I plan to implement these suggestions and fix the issues from acceptance testing at a later date and then give the club the improved version of the system. However, the system, as it is, is able to be used by the club with few issues.

My thorough alpha testing meant that very few bugs made their way to the beta and acceptance testing stages. This meant that the testers could give these better more meaningful comments rather than the comments just being about small bugs. I'm happy with how the process of testing went because after implementing the improvements suggested the system will be better and even more useful to the club.

8.51 Refinement Suggestions

Green - Alpha

Red - Beta

Blue - Acceptance

Issues		Possible Refinements
Functional	F40a - Progress in each form should be saved between system restarts.	Make the number of times attempted increase when the form complete dialog is shown and also set the percentage complete to 100%. This has been fixed see the retest below the original test.
	F40h - How much of each form a user has attempted should be tracked - filechooser	Make the file selected using the file chooser question type persist over system restarts. This has been implemented see the retest below the original test.
	The difficulty filter slider should reset to 1 when the reset button is pressed.	Make it reset to 1.
	Redundant difficulty sort in view forms screen.	Remove the difficulty sort and have the forms sorted by default.
	There should be a % complete sort and times completed sort in the forms window.	Allow the users to sort the forms based on percentage complete or times completed.

	Unable to add multiple questions at once to a form.	Allow multiple rows in the table to be selected with the control key. Then when the add button is pressed, all of the questions are added to the form.
	Editing the entire user table is not a good user experience.	Allow users to select a row and then edit just that individual row in a popup.
	It's tedious to move questions around in a form using the navigation buttons.	Allow the questions to be dragged to move them about the form.
	It's unintuitive to have to click onto the user tab again to make the database decryption prompt to appear.	The popup should open again immediately if the user enters the key incorrectly. The user should have to manually close it to get rid of it.
	The login prompt takes a large amount of time (10 seconds) to appear after opening the system.	Add a splash screen that appears as soon as the system is opened so that the user knows that the system is in the process of opening.
	The system takes a large amount of time (20 seconds) to appear after logging in.	Add a loading screen and splash screen so that the user knows that the system is loading and that it hasn't crashed.
	New user accounts aren't saved to the database unless the save changes button is pressed. This means that it's easy to lose the changes you've made.	The system should prompt the user to save if they close the system and there are unsaved changes.
Validation	Email address validation marks emails that start with a capital letter as incorrect.	The validation should be tweaked so that emails are allowed to start with capital letters.
	.jpg files are sometimes marked as incorrect for image file choosers.	Add a more robust file filter that isn't case sensitive and accepts a wider range of image file types.
Navigation	Next button is not visible on small screens. (Question and form attempt)	Make the window resize correctly for small screens.
	Labels are a little too far from the text fields in the form creation screen.	Move them closer together.
	Add button is small and doesn't stand out compared to the other buttons in the add questions section of the create forms screen.	Make the button a different colour e.g. green.
	The register can sometimes be too narrow to be dragged.	Make the register window wider.
	It's difficult to know if the reports have successfully been sent to the printer.	Add a popup that informs the user that the reports have successfully been sent to print.

	It's difficult to see which buttons correspond to which element of the form in the create forms screen.	Add some vertical space between each element so that the buttons aren't in one large block.
	There are too many popups when saving a form.	Consolidate the popups into a single popup with multiple options. Have a single popup that allows the user to add the form without saving the database or add the form and save the database.
	The entire height of the attempt form window is not visible on monitors with sub 720p resolution.	There are a number of ways that this issue could be fixed. I could make the system automatically open the form attempt window maximised when it detects that the user is running the system on a low resolution screen. I could add a scroll bar that appears allowing the user to scroll through the questions and make the window smaller. Finally, I could make the window smaller and reduce the space between the questions.
	The text in the system is a little small and difficult to read.	The text for the system should be made larger. Maybe from 11pt to 14pt
	It's unclear what to do after completing a form.	Add a prompt that asks the user if they want to close the form after they have completed it.
	It's difficult to tell what they of file a file chooser accepts.	Add a small description of what the filechooser accepts next to the file chooser question in the form.
	There is no way of knowing that a file was uploaded with a file chooser.	There should be a text field that shows the path to the file that the user has selected so that they can see that they have uploaded a file.
	The filechooser can open with part of it off the screen. This makes it difficult to use.	Make the file chooser open in the middle of the screen.
	Questions in the statistics section of the program are unable to be viewed by double clicking and the view question button has to be pressed.	Make a question open to be previewed when it is double clicked in the table.
